A message from Arrah and Teresa

Warm greetings from Teresa & Arrah!
Winter has finally arrived and it's time to pull out those winter woollies!
We hope that everyone had a lovely Easter in April and enjoyed the long weekend with loved ones. Leighton House had a Easter raffle running for the month of March which was drawn on Easter Sunday during an afternoon tea gathering. 1st prize of an enormous chocolate Easter bunny went to Nancy Gray who shared it with her grandchildren, and 2nd prize of a small hamper went to Jill Scott. Well done to you both. $190.00 was raised and all proceeds went to the Westpac Helicopter Trust.

ANZAC day was a special time for all residents and staff. The dawn ceremony was screened on TV1 and was watched by residents and staff, bringing back memories of those who served and those who waited for their loved ones to return.

A special afternoon tea was held in remembrance of all who served.

We would like to say a special 'Thank You' to Nyree Weichel, daughter of Wanda Weichel who sadly passed away last month. Nyree donated a large amount of art and craft material to Leighton House, which will be much enjoyed by many residents here.

In April we had our resident and staff flu vaccinations. A big thank you to all those families who signed consent forms. This is the most important step we can take to keep our residents, our families and ourselves well this winter. This year we set an objective for Leighton House: to have 60% staff and 80% of residents to consent to have the flu vaccine this winter. Our results compared to last year were:

STAFF 2014 – 38% 2015 – 63.04%

RESIDENTS 2014 – 70% 2015- 81.82%

As you can see we achieved our goal in both cases. A big thank you to all involved.

We would like to welcome new staff Roswitha Devries, Eva Raimona, Susan Broughton and Shirley Karika to the team.

You are warmly invited to join us for our

Supporting families

A significant focus of this year's Business Plan is a project called , 'Supporting Families'.

Our goal in the work we do is to provide care in a homely atmosphere in which each person's body, mind and soul is nurtured so that they are able to experience moments full of wonder and fulfillment in their life journey.

Family involvement, support and education are a vital part of this. It is important that we do all we can to make appropriate resources available to support residents/ EPOA/families in areas pertaining to the care of elderly people, dementia, continuing and end of life care.

In practical terms some of the initiatives we are working on include:

- Ensuring families feel supported and have a support person available to them
- Making information and resources available to families in a variety of formats
- Consulting and informing families about important matters related to our facilities and the services we provide
- Staff having the opportunity to hear from family members about their experience of the dementia journey.

We hope to have some specific and exciting new initiatives to share in future newsletters as the project progresses.

Caring for residents' belongings

In our last newsletter we reminded you of the importance of ensuring that all items of value are fully insured and clearly marked with the owner's name, as we cannot take responsibility for loss or damage which may occur.

We also advise against the purchase of delicate or woollen items which may be damaged during the laundry process.

We are very aware of the distress caused to residents and family members when occasionally a woollen item slips through to the laundry and shrinks beyond recognition, or an expensive hearing aid is lost.

We have recently launched a hard-hitting awareness campaign to remind our staff of the importance of caring for our residents' possessions.

We have produced a series of seven posters focusing on the most frequently damaged items: glasses, woollen garments, dentures and hearing aids. The posters appeal to our natural sense of empathy to communicate in a way that is powerful and memorable.

They are displayed in the staff toilets, where they have a captive audience!

We are alternating the posters on a regular basis to keep the interest and freshness of the campaign alive.

We hope to see a marked reduction in incidents of loss and damage as a result of increased awareness.

Laundry

Over the past few months we have had several instances of clothing being misplaced.

Procedures have now been put in place to address this, and we expect to see an improvement. We ask family to ensure all clothing is clearly named.

We currently have a large amount of unnamed clothing and welcome families to speak with Teresa or the staff if you wish to check through it. If any clothing becomes worn, damaged or needs replacing, the Welfare Guardian of the resident will be notified.

Battling the winter blues

This winter we have had an increased focus on the importance of flu vaccination in safeguarding the health of our residents.

There are three components to this:

1. Flu vaccinations for residents. Every year we advise families of the importance of taking advantage of the free flu vaccination to keep their loved ones well over the winter months. Vaccination is proven to decrease the chances of elderly people becoming seriously unwell over winter.
2. Flu vaccinations for staff. Free flu vaccinations have always been available to our staff team. This year we have been very strongly encouraging staff to make the choice to vaccinate, with an organisational poster awareness campaign and information in staff bulletins and on our Facebook page. Next year we will be taking this

An invitation to you

We would like to invite residents and family members to come and meet our local Nurse Practitioner. On July 10th at 10am Kylie Morressy (NP) will be introducing herself and explaining:

- What a Nurse Practitioner is
- Her role at Leighton House
- Which Medical Centres she covers

She will be happy to answer any questions family or residents may have.

If you would like to attend please RSVP to Arrah (Clinical Manager).

Jill Scott won second prize of a hamper in our Easter raffle further, with formal in-house education sessions early in the year explaining the advantages of vaccination, and dispelling some common misconceptions about potential risks. Our aim is to eventually have 100% staff vaccination at all facilities.

3. Family vaccination. If visitors have also been vaccinated, this provides further protection to our residents and staff within the 'community' of the rest home. We are all very aware of the risk of infection from family and friends. We encourage all visitors to:

- Have the flu vaccination, and
- Refrain from visiting if at all unwell
- Make use of the alcogel hand sanitizer on entering and leaving the home.

Communicating with families

Communication with one another is very important, especially when it involves residents in our care – your loved ones. We are often asked how our communication system works.

Sometimes, despite our best efforts, there will be times when a resident sustains an injury, is harmed, or an error occurs. In these instances, or if a resident's condition changes and the doctor has visited, the RN will contact the resident's Welfare Guardian to inform them of the incident. It is then their responsibility to inform other family members.

Multi-disciplinary team meetings are held on a regular basis to fully inform you of your loved ones general condition and care. Again, an invitation to this meeting will be given to the resident's Welfare Guardian. This invitation can then be extended by them to other family members if desired.

Safe footwear for older people

We are often asked for advice on the best shoes to choose for elderly people.

Firstly, if the person has foot pain or known foot problems, a doctor or podiatrist should be consulted.

Choosing the correct shoe is important because ill-fitting shoes or shoes with poor contact with the ground or poor grip may upset balance and the way one walks, increasing the risk of falls.

Important points to remember are:

- ✓ Buy for fit, not size

- ✓ Try out the shoes on a variety of surfaces before buying
- ✓ A firm heel cup provides support when walking
- ✓ Low, wide heels provide more contact with the ground and prevent slipping
- ✓ Thin soles with tread reduce risk of slipping
- ✓ A wide, deep toe box allows room for toe movement and comfort
- ✓ Choose laces, buckles or Velcro that hold the foot firmly.

Accompanying Loved Ones to appointments

Our residents attend outpatient appointments for a variety of reasons. All residents with dementia require an escort to these appointments, and often people prefer to have a support person with them even if this is not a requirement. Please don't be surprised to receive a phone call from one of our RNs asking you to escort your loved one.

Having a family member escort a resident is a good option for residents as at these appointments health and family history are discussed and there are decisions to be made. If you are happy to attend the appointment but have concerns, please do not hesitate to discuss this with the registered nurse. He or she will arrange for a staff member to go with you.

If the time of the appointment does not suit you please discuss this also with the RN and they will liaise with the service provider to change the time if possible.

Thoughts on living and dying

Alison Hume

Being Mortal: Medicine and What Matters in the End, by Atul Gawande, is a most important book. It challenges us to think about the 'medicalising' of old age and death and what we could offer instead.

With much advance in medicine and surgery, death comes to many people after a long medical struggle with an ultimately unstoppable condition. Ageing and death has become a medical issue. There is often a focus on repairing health, trying to fix and control, rather than sustaining the soul.

Our impulse may be to fight to do everything possible until the doctors say that there is nothing more that can be done. We may make no choices and fall back on a default position, just doing something!

We cannot visualise how our lives will end - there are often surprises. Our ending is not controllable but we can make choices even though these will be more and more constricted as time advances. People who are sick and/or aged do have priorities beyond staying safe and living longer.

It seems that when we see our future as finite our focus shifts to the here and now, to everyday pleasures and the people closest to us. People want to continue to be "the author of their life", to keep "shaping the story of their life in the world ... by making choices and sustaining connections to others according to their own priorities. Being what we have made ourselves, no matter the limits or travails we face" has been identified as crucial to maintaining the integrity of our lives. This is the "battle of being mortal."

Often older people hand over the decision making to family. The author suggests that family will choose safety above all else. He believes that we want autonomy for ourselves and safety for those we love. This surprised me at first, but after some contemplation, I really identify with this. When choosing a rest home for a family member, we may well ask the question: "Is this a place I feel comfortable leaving her?" instead of "is this a place she would like to be?"

The health system and aged care can help people achieve what is most important to them at the end of their lives. Some transformation is probably necessary. In aged care, we collect data and measure falls, weight loss, medication use, infections and all manner of other things. We are audited against criteria relating to these things. Increasingly, these things are getting the attention. I feel sad about this. It is important to keep people safe, but is this the primary goal of the people we are caring for? Does this primary focus address their hopes and fears? Perhaps not.

In our homes, we want to hear laughter, to see love and friendship, to see joy all over people's faces, to encourage wonderful moments with families, to plant gardens in the sunshine, listen to beautiful music and we do! We want to help transform the health system and aged care so that we focus on helping people to achieve what is most important to them at the end of their lives.

Notice of pending fee increase for non-subsidised residents

The Government increases maximum contribution for residential fees annually in July. Under the Social Security Act 1964, the term 'maximum contribution' is defined as "the maximum weekly amount (GST inclusive) that any resident assessed as requiring care may be required to pay for contracted residential-care services provided in the region."

Once advice of the Government increase is received at our accounts office we will notify you. Please note that the gazetted increase may not be made available prior to 1 July so there may be a 'catch up' period.
